ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES TO START FRIDAY, JUNE THE SECOND

PROGRAM TO BE SHORTENED

The annual Commencement Exercises for the graduating class at Governor Dummer Academy will begin on Friday, June the second. This year's class will be the one hundred and eighty-first to pass from the quiet countryside of South Byfield. The 1944 graduation holds a much stronger meaning for the Seniors than most such occasions heretofore, since many are faced with the probability of being forced to discontinue, or to seriously interrupt, the continuance of their formal education. Because of the war, the exercises, which last year extended over parts of three days, will last only one and one-half days.

On Friday morning at ten o'clock, a special event will take place. At that time the New Building, which was completed in 1941, will be dedicated as the James Duncan Phillips Building. Mr. Phillips is the President of the Board of Trustees of Governor Dummer and has long been a friend to the school. Also at this time a portrait of Mr. Phillips will be unveiled and hung in the building. Dr. Claude Moore Fuess, the Headmaster of Phillips Academy, Andover, will be the speaker at the dedication.

Following the dedication, the Morse Flag will be presented to the member of the graduating class whose record in all respects meets with the highest approval of the faculty. The presentation will be made by the Reverend Glenn Tilley Morse of Newburyport, the donor of the flag.

The Governor Dummer Glee Club, under the direction of Mr. Sager, will give its last concert in the Lang Gymnasium immediately before lunch. The luncheon for the parents of students at the school will be held in the Phillips Building, while the other guests will be served a buffet lunch on the lawn.

The school baseball team, coached by the Headmaster, will play its final game at two-thirty, meeting the team from Swampscott High School. Following the game tea will be served for the guests on the lawn in front of the Mansion House.

DR. CLAUDE M. FUESS

Headmaster of Phillips Academy, Andover, and Trustee of Governor Dummer, who will preside at the Commencement Dinner

The annual Commencement Dinner, at which Dr. Fuess will preside, will be held at six-thirty in the evening of the same day.

The Graduation Exercises will take place at ten on the morning of June third. As has been the custom, the exercises will be held on the lawn directly in front of the Parsons Schoolhouse. The address to the Senior Class will be made by Dr. George A. Buttrick of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church of New York City. At these closing exercises, the prizes for the school year will be awarded, after which school will officially adjourn until September.

The program of the Commencement Exercises will be found on Page 9.

The members of the Commencement Committee are: Andrew H. Brillhart, William N. Campbell, Jr., George B. Christie, Remington Clark, John I. Collins, Courtland J. Cross, Frederick H. Johnson, Harry W. Lawson, Jr., James E. Lothrop, George A. Pollin.

ANNUAL MILESTONE DANCE HELD ON MAY SIXTH

The annual school dance, held each spring for the benefit of the yearbook, The Milestone, was held on Saturday, the sixth of May. The occasion featured Alan Curtis and his orchestra, a musical unit of considerable note, and was held in the Philip Cobb Room of the New Building.

About sixty girls were guests of the school. The program included athletic events and a tea dance on Saturday afternoon, the dinner and dance during the evening and a late breakfast Sunday morning. The girls slept in three campus dormitories which were given over entirely to their use.

This year, as in past years, Mrs. Eames has contributed greatly to the formation of plans for the dance program and has greatly assisted the dance committee whose members were Spaulding Bisbee, Jr., Andrew C. Cushing, William J. Hale, Joseph L. Hannan, George P. Kingsley, IV, Eugene S. Martin, Bradley H. Roberts, Edmund C. Tarbell, and Remington A. Clark, Jr., Chairman.

Vespers

April 2: The Reverend Leslie T. Pennington, of the First Church, Cambridge.

April 9: Musical program by Mrs. Edith True Marshall.

April 16: Mr. Arthur B. Perry, Principal of the Boys' School, Milton Academy.

April 23: The Reverend Richard Greeley Preston, All Saints' Church, Worcester.

April 30: Dr. Kenneth C. M. Sills, President of Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine.

May 7: Mr. Eliot Putnam, Headmaster of Noble and Greenough School, Dedham.

May 14: The Reverend Robert Wood Coe, of the Leyden Congregational Church, Brookline.

May 21: Mr. Francis V. Lloyd, Head of the Lower School, St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H.

May 28: The Reverend Horace F. Holton, Secretary of the Congregational Board of Pastoral Supply, Boston.

GLEE CLUB HOLDS JOINT CONCERT WITH BRADFORD

The Governor Dummer Academy Glee Club gave a joint concert with the Bradford Junior College Glee Club in the Lang Gymnasium on Saturday, April 15. The concert was attended by about three hundred persons, including the boys and friends of the school, and was given for the benefit of the Newbury Honor Roll. The boys in the club were hosts to the Bradford girls and both groups had dinner in the school dining hall. After the concert, a dance was held in the Philip Cobb Room.

The following program was presented:

REMINGTON CLARK CHOSEN SENIOR CLASS PRESIDENT

At a meeting of the senior class on May 2, Remington A. Clark, Jr. of Winchester was elected president of the Class of 1944.

Rem has been very active in school affairs during his two years in the school, having been a member of the Glee Club, and a regular member of the football, basketball, and baseball teams. He also served as Chairman of this spring's Dance Committee.

LORD TIMOTHY DEXTER

By LAWRENCE VAN DOREN

REPRODUCTION OF AN OLD PRINT OF TIMOTHY DEXTER'S HOUSE IN NEWBURYPORT

Timothy Dexter, perhaps eighteenth century Newburyport's most renowned eccentric, and, according to his own account, "Lord of the East, Lord of the West, and greatest philosopher of the known world," was probably a familiar of many of his contemporaries in Byfield Parish. At any rate, the ledger of Jeremiah Pearson, proprietor of a Byfield tavern in the early days of the republic, indicates that Dexter spent considerable money on refreshment there, and hence, it is to be assumed, considerable time in conviviality with the community's farmers and businessmen.

By referring to public records and historical documents and by delving into the vast wealth of local legend, the curious can piece together an intelligible story of Dexter's fabulous career. The various accounts do not all agree in detail, and, doubtless, the truth of many anecdotes would not bear too close investigation; but even discounting discrepancies, the known truth is sufficiently fantastic.

Timothy Dexter came from Malden, near-penniless, and with a pack on his back. He set up business in Newburyport as a breeches-maker on a small scale, advertising

GENTS BRICHES ALLSO ARTIKLES
SOUTABLE FOR WIMMINS WEAR

Even in an age of individualist grammarians, this did not pass for literacy. A speculator by nature, he invested his modest profits in the Continental paper dollar, at the time worth virtually nothing, to receive a year later a return of some four hundred percent, when the "Continental" were called in by a newly solvent government.

Breeches now lost their interest, and Dexter became that most awesome of figures, the New England Merchant. At a venture, he actually sent coals to Newcastle—and made a profit; for a colliers' strike was in progress. He sent English Bibles to Spanish Cuba—and made a profit; for he told the natives that the mere possession of the books would save them from everlasting damnation. From whalers who were interested only in oil and ambergris and who considered whalebone waste material, he bought bone in large quantities, and introduced its use in molding ladies' figures. Warming pans and woollen mittens sold like hotcakes in the tropical West Indies. The former found a use as molasses skimmers or skillets, and the latter were purchased by Norwegian seamen who regularly made Havana a port of call.

Finding himself suddenly wealthy beyond what he could have imagined possible a few years before, Timothy Dexter vainly sought to establish himself in Newburyport society. He bought a large house and filled it with priceless objets d'art. In his garden, an arboretum of rare fruit trees, he erected columns surmounted by lifesize painted wooden statues of such ill-assorted figures as Nelson, Louis XVI, Washington and himself. He even appointed a poet laureate, whose principal job was to write odes celebrating his employer. This poet, Jonathan Plummer by name, had started life as a fish peddler, and had made his first incursion into the realm of the arts as the confidential salesman of bawdy ballads, which he would hide under the fish in his barrow. For all this, Jonathan was not entirely without qualification for his new role. Much of his work is doggerel, and much of it has the hollow ring of insincerity, but there are flashes which indicate that he possessed real poetic talent. Even Jonathan, however, failed to soften the hearts of the nabobs of High Street. The "old families" thought Dexter's taste poor, and would have none of him.

His status as an untouchable embittered Lord Timothy's later years. He quarrelled violently with his wife and finally declared her officially dead, instructing his servants to treat her as though she were not a living creature at all. At a later time, he held a mock funeral for himself to see whether or not she would weep for him (incidentally, she did not).

This mock funeral was probably the most spectacular single event of Dexter's life. Several thousand visitors were present, and caterers were kept occupied supplying the multitude with wines from my lord's cellar. The pall-bearers, selected from among the leading citizens of the county, carried the splendid, empty coffin to the imposing tomb in the garden, where the doors were flung back to reveal the complete preparations which Dexter's ingenious mind had devised for his spirit's comfort in the after life.

There were provisions for smoking; a speaking-tube; and even fireworks to amuse the lordly shade.

As he grew older Timothy Dexter experienced what is not uncommon among the aging: a strong urge to express himself volubly on all subjects. Accordingly he kept a steady barrage of articles directed at the Newburyport press, which just as steadily refused them, but finally had to capitulate when Dexter offered to pay. He also published at his own expense a book, entitled A Pickle to the Knowing Ones. This work purports to explain how Lord Timothy acquired his riches, and also contains a number of aphorisms on human nature some of which are meaningless, others of which have a real shrewdness and pungency.

Lord Timothy Dexter died in 1806, six years after the beginning of the real Century of the Common Man. He was himself a common man, for all his posing. It is said that even after his ostensibly abandoned tailoring, he would stitch up an occasional pair of breeches, out of pride—the bourgeois pride of artistry which maintains one's self-respect in the face of any snub. It was the common man whom he awed, and with whom he felt at home; and in his will he left all that part of his fortune which was not reserved for his immediate family to the poor of Newburyport.

Climax of Glee Club Season Reached in Concert With Dana Hall, Walnut Hill, and Andover

Faure Requiem to be Presented by Combined Clubs on May 14

The Governor Dummer glee club will reach the climax of its current season when it gives a combined concert with Dana Hall School of Wellesley, Walnut Hill School of Natick, and Phillips Academy of Andover at Sanders Hall, Harvard University, in Cambridge on Sunday, May 14. The glee club has participated in many joint concerts with other schools in the past, but it has not previously undertaken the presentation of a single large work in conjunction with three other schools.

The program of May 14th will include mainly the singing of the Requiem Mass of Fauré, a work of such length and caliber that it should prove to be very impressive and well worth the effort that has gone into the preparation for the concert. Excerpts from the Requiem have been sung by the Governor Dummer club this year at the joint concerts with Bradford Junior College and Walnut Hill School, but a complete performance of this somewhat neglected work of the French composer reaches a standard considerably above that of the average preparatory school glee club program.

The combined clubs will be conducted by Stanley Chapple.

MR. HARRIS TALKS TO SCHOOL ABOUT SNAKES

Mr. Norman D. Harris, who last year taught biology and chemistry at Governor Dummer, gave a talk on snakes Friday evening, March third, in the Lang Gymnasium.

After a few persiflagistic remarks concerning the physiognomies of some of his former students, Mr. Harris launched into a tirade about his various elongated friends in the ophidian category. He attempted rather unsuccessfully to gain the confidence of the assembly by constantly reassuring them that his charges were clean, friendly, and entirely capable of becoming devoted house pets.

He then began to bring forth various specimens to prove his statements starting with a large worm which was universally acclaimed as the favorite due to its relative size, and gradually worked his way up. In the process appeared among others a milk snake, indigo, copperhead, and as a grand climax, a large belligerent rattlesnake.

Despite his efforts, there has been no conversion of anyone into a snake enthusiast, and in general the boys will milk the cows and not the rattlesnakes.

RED CROSS SUBSCRIPTIONS LARGEST IN SCHOOL'S HISTORY

The school's annual drive for subscriptions to the Red Cross fund was completed during the winter term with contributions totalling $465.50. This sum represents an increase of sixty-five dollars over the contributions for 1943 and is the largest single amount subscribed to the Red Cross in the history of the school.

The Red Cross campaign was conducted by a committee headed by Dennis Andersen. The committee included the following boys representing the different corridors: Joseph E. Brazier, Jr., Andrew L. Brillhart, Alan P. Carpenter, J. Devereux de Gozzaldi, Samuel J. Finlay, Alvin Firth, Homer L. Gibbs, Jr., Howard V. Halbert, Ralph E. Hertel, Charles Houston, Jr., Gordon J. Hoyt, Richard A. Korner, Eugene S. Martin, Arthur S. Page, Jr., Henry M. Sanders, Albert F. Statler, and Malcolm H. von Saltza.

MOVIES FOR THE SPRING TERM

The following movies have been scheduled for the spring term:

April 8: True to Life, with Mary Martin and Franchot Tone.

April 15: Guadalcanal Diary, with Preston Foster and Lloyd Nolan.

April 22: Lifeboat, with Tallulah Bankhead and William Bendix.

April 29: No Time for Love, with Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray.

May 6: Sahara, with Humphrey Bogart and Bruce Bennett.

May 13: What a Woman, with Rosalind Russell and Brian Aherne.

May 20: Destination Tokyo, with John Garfield and Cary Grant.

May 27: Riding High, with Dorothy Lamour and Dick Powell.

EDITORIAL

Ever since the Glee Club was first organized at Governor Dummer fourteen years ago by Mr. Sager, it has been second only to athletics as the school's leading extra-curriculum activity. This prestige is difficult for the boys from other schools of this kind to understand. At many preparatory schools, the glee club is an organization that is looked down upon by a majority of the boys and thought to be something for boys who are not qualified for any of the other activities. Here, however, over 85% of the entire school try out for the club at the beginning of each year and only 50 "would-be Carusos but more like Sinatras" qualify. Strange as it may seem, most of the boys who are prominent in athletics try for the glee club. Perhaps this has helped to make ours the outstanding singing group it is; for these boys know that only a great deal of practice can make a success of such a thing. Just as these boys work hard on the athletic fields, so do they at their bi-weekly rehearsals. If they did not join the club with this spirit, they would never be able to sing such pieces of music as the Requiem Mass of Fauré and works from Gilbert and Sullivan.

These selections also indicate the well balanced program on which the boys work. After a few months, the club is able to give a concert to suit any kind of audiences from those at Fort Devens Lovell Hospital to a Baptist Church. The above statement is no exaggeration for exactly that has been done. After a boy has been in the club for two or three years, Mr. Sager likes to feel that he has a fine understanding of all types of choral music.

That the tradition of the glee club has grown rapidly with each year can easily be seen at any school gathering. The ability of the boys at Governor Dummer to sing well and to know and to enjoy what they are singing has had great bearing on other school traditions such as the music at Vespers, evening meetings, and the final Senior Sing.

GOVERNORS LOSE OPENING BASEBALL GAME TO GROTON 3-1

The 1944 baseball team, minus the services of Captain Jim Waugh, opened the season at Groton School, April 14th. The game was played under trying weather conditions which hampered both teams. Groton scored twice in the third inning and once in the fifth while the lone Governor Dummer run came in the ninth as the result of a safe bunt by Courtland Cross, a stolen base, and Bots Young's line single to left. Rem Clark and George Christie pitched well for the losers, but the outstanding feature of the game was the pitching of Gray of Groton who allowed only three hits and struck out twenty-two Governor Dummer batters.

NOBLE'S BOWS 16-6 FOR GOVERNORS' FIRST VICTORY

The Noble and Greenough baseball team proved unable to halt the Governor's quest for their first victory of the season and was defeated 16-6 at Dedham on April 29th. George Christie and Rem Clark again divided the pitching for the winners and Bots Young led the assault on the Noble and Greenough pitching staff with three hits including a home run.

MILTON NOSES OUT GOVERNORS 8-7
IN ELEVEN INNINGS

In a very close and exciting contest, the Red and White dropped their second game of the season to the Milton Academy nine 8-7 in an eleven inning struggle.

George Christie, who started on the mound, was hit rather hard and received poor support. He gave up six runs and three hits and walked five. He was relieved by Rem Clark who pitched well for the rest of the game.

After Milton had scored their runs, the Governors had to make up a six run deficit and make it up they did with two in the fourth inning and a five run rally in the fifth. Milton tied up the game in the sixth and there was no further scoring until the last of the eleventh when, with none out, a Texas leaguer fell safely in left field and the winning run was across the plate.
